For an anti-gun guy it is strange that you defend his stupidity with a gun. That is what this is about. His actions.

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 Jul 2016

What has that to do with this guy we are talking about? The point is this guy was dumb and police did well to follow up.

1

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 Jul 2016

Replying to @Britestoan

But that is a point that doesn't need to be made in this context. Nor is it a fit response to my initial comment. You did jump in

1

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 Jul 2016

Replying to @Britestoan

But that is totally irrelevant to this. Guy brandished an assault weapon. There was a mass shooting. Police followed up. Done.

Now providing feedback on our @padlet using @voicethread - Exploring #EdTech Apps and Programmes @uni_augsburg

EdTech Class (Slide 1 of 2)

EdTech Myths and Facts

Welcome to Padlet! Let's sort the myths from the facts in German EdTech use.

FACT
A genuine concern about using EdTech

data protection laws in Germany school regulations: No Phones!

lack of teacher knowledge: not part of university education costs: if some children/parents cannot afford tech, they might be bullied

Side effects that tech have: Concern of come up with bad info

health reasons

they are afraid (of change?)

they have to be flexible

You have to be more prepared, to know which Use of tech is possible

MYTH
Not a valid reason to reject EdTech

It is really complicated

at a certain age it's really difficult to learn new things

Teachers themselves says "I am not good with tech things."

there's always a problem with technology

there is not enough equipment in schools

Don't want to work a lot, it is easier to keep using their old class contents people will think I'm lazy if I rely too much on the use of technology (youtube videos etc.)

It is good how it is. We Do not

Hey

Twitter from the point of view of a student

Q1: Why should my teacher bother with Twitter?

Q2: What are the rules about students following their teachers on Twitter?

Q3: What if I want to block my teacher from following me? How might that be perceived?

Q4: How can Twitter help my own learning as a student?

Q5: Should my teacher connect with other classrooms globally? Why or why not?

Q6: As a student, how might I use Twitter to make a difference in

1Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 May 2016Replying to @JoeOHaraDCU

@pjo90 True. I think diversity of Keynotes is important. And best when multi regional. Do you find good representation from beyond UK?

1Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 May 2016Replying to @JoeOHaraDCU

@pjo90 I am out of the scene. Good to hear there is diversity.

1Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 May 2016Replying to @EoinLenihan

@pjo90 And of course that is not a commentary on the quality of those Keynotes. Rather a question about Irish ed.

2Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 May 2016Replying to @JoeOHaraDCU

@pjo90 I have noticed that many Irish ed conferences rely heavily on UK Keynotes. I have often wondered about this. As you say - context.

2Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 May 2016Replying to @EoinLenihan

Remember talks about class divisions in ed. Based on US data. But e.g. in Ireland farmer families are unique high-achieving cohort. @pjo90

1Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 May 2016Replying to @JoeOHaraDCU

@pjo90 Important point. Remember many sociology lectures at uni where all data was uncritically taken from USA.

A passionate analysis of Ireland's teacher crisis by @annmarie3391 - In response to eoinlenihan.weebly.com/blog/-in-irela... #edchatie

Ann Marie O'Brien

2/18/2016 12:41:54

Eoin, I couldn't agree more with the sentiments expressed in this blog. Without doubt it is a scandal that so many Irish graduates are being trained as second level teachers without a realistic prospect of employment into the future in Ireland. I attended the Teaching Council's Festival of teaching at the RDS, Dublin in October 2014 (Feilte). At one particular session a number of newly qualified teachers vented their frustrations at not being able to find work. Some had been working in industry for some years before deciding to retrain as teachers. They naively thought they were going to gain employment in Irish schools once qualified given that there were several teacher training programmes in the state. However, having qualified and sought in vain for work, those who spoke were disillusioned and angry. As it happened, the current Minister for Education, Jan O'Sullivan, was at Feilte and spoke for a few minutes to the large gathering. She assured angry participants that there would be more teaching jobs nationwide in the next few years due to an increase in the student population. Further, she said that the Dept. of Education intended to consult with the Universities and the Teaching Council in relation to the issue of quotas. Perhaps, not surprisingly, given the rate some things happen in Ireland in the field of education, the quota issue hasn't been addressed yet. I wonder will it ever be addressed? I'm not convinced the political will is there to deal with the issue.

New - Inclusion in Schools is about problem-solving not point-scoring eoinlenihan.weebly.com/blog/-inclusio... #FutureEdChat

EdchatDE @EdchatDE · Oct 27

Q2 What arguments against inclusive schools do you know? #EDchatDE

Pin it

A2: This is one of the main arguments heard in discussions. #EDchaDE

A2. Some parents and educators may feel that inclusive policies "hold strong students back". #edchatde

Those people would be wrong. 30+ years of educational research actually proves the opposite. Everyone improves.

Personal mission from my website. Would love to see every student have an Internationally-Minded experience. #BFC530

A Model for Internationally-Minded Education in German Public Schools

Private International Schools in Germany offer their students a Values-led education that develops well-rounded, life-long learners in an Inquiry-based, 21st Century teaching environment. Unfortunately, these schools are out of the financial reach of most German families. By training German teachers to be Internationally-Minded instructors, every child can have equal access to this learning environment.

My personal goal and reason for moving into higher ed. #bfc530
- A Model for Internationally-Minded Education in German Public Schools

Private International Schools in Germany offer their students a Values-led education that develops well-rounded, life-long learners in an Inquiry-based, 21st Century teaching environment. Unfortunately, these schools are out of the financial reach of most German families. By training German teachers to be Internationally-Minded instructors, every child can have equal access to this learning environment.

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 12 Jan 2015

Remember, Hattie+Marzano = best bets. The teacher then must try and reject based on experimentation. That is best practice I think #edchatie

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 12 Jan 2015

A lot of skepticism on here. It is interesting, but only if based upon having read the research. Most worries are addressed there. #edchatie

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 5 Jan 2015

Replying to @JonMVitale

@JonVitaleEdu @KRenaeP Demos are not ephemeral. They are what we (teachers) do every day. They are real world skills; grades not so much.

1

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 5 Jan 2015

Replying to @KRenaeP

@KRenaeP @JonVitaleEdu Yes! Like how Hattie argues that schools are awash with Ss data but it does not effect any change in teaching. #TTOG

1

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 5 Jan 2015

Replying to @JonMVitale

@JonVitaleEdu But that's the point. The data being gathered from grading is not being used to inform teaching. Only to label Ss. #TTOG

1

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 5 Jan 2015

Replying to @JonMVitale

@JonVitaleEdu @KRenaeP The feedback is the most important part, what did you do? what will you do next? The grade is just a labelling system

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 5 Jan 2015

Replying to @JonMVitale

@JonVitaleEdu @KRenaeP Sounds good to me, except for the grade part. Why not have a demonstration instead that shows off Ss understanding?
